About Me

Jim is a native New Yorker and graduate of Columbia University. In 1975 he began a two year surgical residency with plans to complete his training in New Haven. However the lure of the Bay Area proved irresistible and he instead remained on the West coast. Jim embarked in a career in General Surgery where he was an early adopter of minimally invasive (laparoscopic) surgery. His motto: "When in doubt, cut it out". During this time he was also able to pursue interests in cycling (self-contained SF to Memphis trek) and billiards (1989 state 9 ball champion)

In 1998 Jim decided to take a temporary hiatus from 60+ hour work weeks which has continued to the present. To quote Edgar Bergen "Hard work never killed anybody, but why take a chance?". This has left time to develop interests in duplicate bridge, volunteer endeavors and an attempt to achieve the computer proficiency of an 11 year old.

Jim met his partner in crime Bob Highsmith in 2001 and two years later Bob formed the San Francisco chapter of Black Tie Club. The club has become an integral part of their lives and they have cultivated many lasting friendships. Bob and Jim encourage all BTCI members to pay a visit to the City by the Bay for one of their events and look forward to more fun times and memories.
